REASON FOR ALLOWANCE

1. Daisei et al, Bridgestone, Takahashi disclose various types of ATV radial tire of a block pattern in which a plurality of blocks are disposed on a tread surface at distance from one another, wherein said blocks includes a chamfered block, said chamfered block including a notch which comprises an inclined surface obtained by chamfering a corner between an upper surface of the block and a wall surface of the block on an outer side edge of the block which is directed outward of a vehicle when the tire is mounted on the vehicle. The height of the chamfering part is 10-50% of the height of a groove while the width of the tire is 40-80% of the width of the tire of the block. Sumitomo Rubber Inc discloses an ATV radial tire comprising rectangular tire blocks and a land ratio which is set to be in the range of 0-5. However, none of the references of record suggests an ATV radial tire comprising a chamfer angle of 30 to 60 degrees with respect to the upper surface of the chamfer block and a height of 25 to 50% of the height of the chamfer block, wherein said chamfered blocks are laterally long in which a length of the block in an axial direction of the tire is longer than a length of the block in a circumferential direction of the tire, said chamfered blocks comprise a connecting portion which obliquely extends in the circumferential direction of the tire and connects an outer side portion and an inner portion of the chamfer block which is deviated in the circumferential direction, whereby said chamfer is directed outward of a vehicle when the tire is mounted on the vehicle in the manner defined in the instant claim 5 and in combination with other limitations of the claim. Also, none of the references of record suggests an ATV radial tire comprising a chamfer angle of 30 to 60 degrees with respect to the upper surface of the chamfer block and a height of 25 to 50% of the height of the chamfer block, wherein the main blocks in a circumferential main block row outward of the vehicle have a ground contact area smaller than a ground contact area of main blocks in a circumferential main block row inward of the vehicle, whereby said chamfer is directed outward of a vehicle when the tire is mounted on the vehicle in the manner defined in the instant claim 9 and in combination with other limitations of the claim. Therefore, claims 4, 6-8, 11-20, depending therefrom, are considered to be allowable.
